The County Fermanagh Grand Orange Lodge is backing the campaign to protect hospital services.

Reaffirmed its support for the 'Save Our SWAH' campaign, the lodge showcased a banner supporting the campaign during their Twelfth march this year and now displays the same banner on the Enniskillen District Hall.

The campaign calls for the retention of key services at the South West Acute Hospital in Enniskillen.

A spokesman for the lodge said: "The South West Acute Hospital is a vital service for the people of Fermanagh and the wider community, and its future is of great concern to us all.

"By displaying this banner at the Twelfth of July parade and on Enniskillen District Hall, we wish to highlight the importance of protecting and maintaining local healthcare provision.

"We stand with the community in calling for the safeguarding of services at SWAH, ensuring that high-quality and accessible healthcare remains available for current and future generations."
